Provisions of Logan's Labor Arbitration Bill.

The House Debating Subsidy for American Steamships.

Details of the Scheme of a Second Vice-President.

Logan's Labor Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 19. Senator Logan presented in the senate to-day a substitute for the labor arbitration bill, which recently passed the house, which in substance provides as follows:

For a commission of arbitration to be appointed by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to consist of five members, one to be selected from the republican organization, one from the democratic organization and one who is not recognized as a member of either organization, one from the class of citizens experienced in the management and operation of railroads and in the transportation of property and passengers, not in the employ or connected with or interested in any railroad corporation or company engaged in any business connected with the transportation of persons and property, and one who is identified specially with the labor interests, having a full knowledge of the conditions and employments of laboring people. Persons comprising commission shall be men having superior intelligence as to the industrial and laboring interests of the country. The commissioners are each to receive $3,500 a year salary and are empowered to employ a secretary, stenographer and messenger, the two former to receive $2,000 a year and the latter $1,400. The commission is also allowed actual traveling expenses. It is made the duty of the commissioners to meet and organize as soon as may be after their appointment for the purpose of hearing and determining such matters and differences between transportation companies, either by land or water, and their employes as shall be submitted to them for arbitration, such submission to be in writing and signed by the parties of the controversy. In all cases submitted for arbitration the parties to the same are required to sign an agreement to submit to the award of the commission. Every hearing and decision shall be in a summary and informal way, according to the principles of equity and justice applicable to the circumstances of the case, and each party shall be given full opportunity to be heard in person and by witnesses and shall have the right to be represented by counsel. After concluding the hearing on any controversy the commission shall make its report in writing with the finding of facts on which it is based, a majority of members concurring therein, and immediately transmit the same with a copy of all evidence to the president of the United States who shall make the report public as soon as received. A copy of the award shall be sent to the district court of the United States in the district where the controversy arose, and it shall be put upon the records of the court and have the same binding force and effect as a decree of the court, and shall be enforced in the same way. The commission is empowered to visit any place where controversies may arise, and it may take testimony, hear counsel and make its decision at any place it may think best. It shall report through the president to congress the result of all investigations, with all testimony and every action in reference to such controversy that comes before it. It may require U. S. marshals to serve process and such marshals shall receive such fees as they receive for like messages or process issued by the United States. The commissioners' witnesses shall also derive the same fees as when attending before U. S. commissioners, but the expenses of any single arbitration shall not exceed $1000. The commission shall possess all such powers to administer oaths, etc., as belong to U. S. commissioners. It may, upon any serious difference or dispute on account of wages, oppressions or wrongs complained of by employes or employers, repair to the place where such complaints arise and make full examination and investigation of the same and report to congress through the president of the United States. The commission in addition to the customary oaths of office shall on any case being submitted to them take an oath to fairly and faithfully perform their duty. The total expenses of the performance of such duties shall not exceed $50,000 per year. Commissioners of arbitration shall hold their offices for three years unless sooner removed by the president for good cause, which cause shall be reported to the senate with the nomination of the successor of any of them.

Second Vice President Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 19. The bill reported to-day from the house committee on electoral count proposing a constitutional amendment creating and defining the office of second vice president, provides in case of removal from office, death, resignation or constitutional disability both of the president and vice president, the office of president shall devolve on the second vice president of the United States, who shall be voted for in distinct ballots at the same time and in like manner and for the same term as president and vice president by electors appointed by the several states. In the case of removal of the vice president from office of his death, resignation or constitutional disability, or when the vice-president exercises the office of president of the United States the second vice-president shall be president of the senate and shall also act as such in the absence of the vice-president from the senate, but shall have no vote unless the senate be equally divided, provided, however, that the senate shall choose a president pro tempore in the absence of both the vice-president and second vice-president, or when the vice-president shall exercise the office of president of the United States and the second vice-president shall be absent from the senate, or when the second vice-president shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

Appropriation Estimates.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill as agreed on by the house committee on appropriations and as it will be reported to the house by Mr. Holman to-morrow appropriates $20,535,113, being $38,485 less than the appropriation for the current fiscal year and $848,568 less than estimates. The appropriation for the civil service commission remains unchanged, that $31,400 is appropriated for salaries, but it is provided that the appropriation shall be available only when the rules of the civil service commission are so framed as that the names of all applicants for official appointment from any state found duly qualified on examination and without regard to skill shall be sent to the heads of departments or other officers charged with making appointments.

Telephone Investigation.

WASHINGTON, May 19. When the telephonic investigating committee met to-day Chairman Boyle produced certain telegrams that passed between President Cleveland and Van Benthuysen relative to the application to bring government suit. Van Benthuysen in his dispatches on February 13th last offered to furnish a detailed statement of the circumstances attending the making of application for refutation of the charge that the Pan-Electric had been a party to the application and to correct the mistake into which the attorney general had fallen on that point. Private Secretary Lamont on the following day replied that the president had no desire to express in the matter. The chairman stated by authority of the president that that was all of the correspondence which had passed between himself and Van Benthuysen. After an hour spent in putting in evidence letters passing between Pan-Electric directors published in newspapers and other documentary evidence the committee adjourned until to-morrow.

Cholera in Europe.

WASHINGTON, May 19. The marine hospital bureau has received reports showing that cholera in a violent form has appeared in villages of Bretagne, France, where fishermen assemble in large numbers in the spring time and live together under unfavorable conditions. Marseilles is also said to be in a deplorable sanitary condition, and the mortality record for the first three months of the present year is greater than for any preceding year, being at the rate of 48 per 1000 of population. Cholera is reported to have made its appearance in that city.

Admission of Dakota.

WASHINGTON, May 19. At a meeting of the house committee on territories to-day an informal agreement was reached that the senate bill providing for the admission of southern Dakota as a state should go on the house calendar adversely reported, and that the Springer bill providing an enabling act for the entire territory should go on the calendar as favorably reported. Owing to the absence of several members a formal vote was not taken, but it is expected this will be taken at a meeting Monday next.

Pacific Railroads.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The house committee on Pacific railroads to-day heard arguments by Van Wyck and Dorsey in favor of the bill authorizing the Union Pacific to purchase or lease branches. The matter was then referred to a sub-committee which had the Pacific railway funding bill in charge.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 19. The president sent the following nominations to the senate: John Y. Ostrander to be register of the land office at Olympia, Washington territory; to be postmaster, Silas U. Bennett at Georgetown, Colo.

XLIX Congress.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, May 19. Hoar gave notice that to-morrow morning he would call up the bill disposing of the Alabama awards.

Frye called up the Staten Island bridge bill and consideration of the bill was proceeded with.

The pension bill was placed before the senate, the pending question being that of McPherson to recommend the bill to the committee with instructions to submit to the senate an estimate of the expense that would be incurred by its passage. McPherson's motion to recommit was rejected; yeas 14, nays 28.

The question recurred on Blair's amendment to Van Wyck's amendment. Van Wyck's amendment is to add to the bill a section providing that no soldier under this act should receive a pension of less than $8 per month. Blair's motion is to make the provision read "No pension paid under any law to any soldier hereafter shall be rated at less than $4 a month."

Blair modified his amendment so as to include sailors, marines, etc.

Blair's amendment was agreed to.

Logan then moved the amendment already suggested by him to make the minimum pension hereafter payable under any law not less than $6 a month. Logan's amendment was rejected, yeas 20, nays 21.

The question recurring on the amendment of Van Wyck as amended by that of Blair, Ingalls moved to lay it on the table. The motion was not agreed to and the amendment as amended was then agreed to.

Saulsbury offered an amendment providing that no money be paid in pensions under the pending bill until provision be made by law to meet necessary expenditures by a tax or income specifically applicable for such payment.

On motion of Blair this was laid on the table, yeas 29, nays 15.

Logan moved an amendment extending provisions of the bill so as to cover men who served three months. He said he personally knew many men who had served only three months who were as much entitled to a pension as if they had served four years. Agreed to.

Butler offered as an amendment a provision for service pension for Mexican veterans.

To this Conger offered an amendment excluding persons under political disabilities.

Blair, in moving to lay Butler's amendment on the table, said the house had already passed a Mexican pension bill, which would be pressed in the senate in due time. The motion to lay on the table prevailed, yeas 33, nays 19.

Mr. Ingalls in suggesting an amendment to strike out the word "labor" and insert the word "exertion" expressed the belief that without this change teachers, merchants, lawyers or others who earned a livelihood by intellectual exertions would not be entitled to any benefit of the bill.

Blair accepted the suggested amendment and it was agreed to.

After further debate the pension bill passed; yeas 34, nays 14.

The bankruptcy bill was laid before the senate and after an ineffectual attempt of Mr. Riddleberger to secure an executive session the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

Dibble of South Carolina, from the committee on laws regulating the election of president, reported a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment creating and defining the office of second vice-president of the United States. House calendar.

The house then went into committee of the whole on senate amendments to the postoffice appropriation bill.

Millard of New York briefly advocated the foreign mail service amendment, contending that it would have a beneficial effect on American commerce.

Phelps of New Jersey said the amendment and the vote by which it was adopted in the senate were an encouragement to friends of American shipping. He was proceeding to make a summary of the vote when he was interrupted by Blount of Georgia with the point that it was not in order to refer to the actions of the senate.

Phelps suggested that the gentleman should be proud that eight democratic senators had had the courage to vote for the amendment. He had read from public prints that eight democratic senators had voted to give new steamships to American commerce and new ports to American manufacturers. The senate having performed its duty the house had presented to it an opportunity to pass a measure full of advantages to the country. What the country needed were new steamships and foreign markets. This measure would give them. The country wanted its sea-coasts defended. This measure would do it by giving the country a merchant marine which was the militia of the seas. This measure was advantageous and ought to be passed. It would be passed unless members were frightened because some gentleman had called it subsidy. It was not subsidy. Subsidy was a grant or excessive payment.

Mr. Hiscock of New York maintained that the amendment was not a subsidy. When the gentleman intimated that the lobby was full of men pushing the senate amendment, he might as well say that as strong influences were at work emanating from the other side of the ocean to strike down American steamship lines. Measured by the prices which were paid for carrying our domestic mails on railroads, steamships and star routes, the United States would be paying under this senate amendment a very low rate of compensation; indeed, measured by rates paid by every European power, it would be paying very small compensation. If there was a governmental policy worthy of support, it was contained in this amendment.

Mr. Dockery of Missouri announced his opposition to the amendment because it was coercive legislation. He then proceeded to argue that the subsidy would not have the effect of building up the commerce of the country and in support of his statement he quoted statistics to show that from '66 to '77 which he termed the "subsidy period" the tonnage and commerce of the United States steadily fell off. Much of the subsidy proposed would go the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. He had heard it said that this line was owned by 700 different persons, but he declared it was largely owned and officered by Jay Gould, Sydney Dillon, Russell Sage and C. P. Huntington. These were the men to get this appropriation, which assumed to go to the building of the commerce of the country and the merchant marine. No man would go further than he in restoring the merchant marine, but if this could only be done now by means of contributions to the Pacific Mail Steamship company he wanted to wait a time and look out for some other remedy. Under this amendment the Pacific Mail steamship company of unsavory record would get $382,195, nearly one-half of the expropriation. He called upon his party friends to halt and hesitate before they gave their sanction to a measure which did not advance the interests of the merchant marine, but which put in the coffers of this corrupt line $326,308 more than it had received last year for the same service.

Mr. Dingley of Missouri favored the amendment.

Holman of Indiana earnestly opposed the policy of subsidy and contended that the policy would not have the effect of building up American commerce. This policy which it was sought to engraft anew on legislation had in the past brought shame and dishonor upon the house of representatives. One of the great corporations which was now asking for this increased compensation had come to a previous house and corrupted the legislators of the country.

This closed the general debate and the committee rose and the house adjourned.

Arthur's First Outing.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Ex-President Arthur took a drive yesterday in Central Park. This was his first outing since his illness assumed an alarming character. General Arthur said in conversation after the drive that he did not find that the exertion had in any way tired him, and that the opportunity afforded him change of scene and had certainly improved the tone of his spirits. He hoped that this effort to take the air would not be followed by any reaction, for it had been a great gratification to him to watch nature as presented in all her loveliness at this season of the year. The nature of Mr. Arthur's complaint, physicians say, will necessarily lead to alternate periods of depression and exaltation of spirits. The recent genial weather, they say, is in his favor, and they say that there is no reason to believe fatal consequences are at present imminent.

Cardinal Taschereau.

QUEBEC, May 19.—Official announcement was received last night from Rome confirming Arch Bishop Taschereau's election to a cardinalate. The news was received with delight by the Catholics, who gave vent to their feelings by illuminating their residences, displaying bunting and holding special services in various Roman Catholic churches during the evening. The Pontifical zouaves called upon his eminence and presented him with an address of congratulation. Pyrotechnic displays were given by different citizens. The beretta is not expected to arrive until June 10, when grand festivities will take place. Cardinal Taschereau has sent out a circular letter promulgating the decision of Pope Leo XIII forbidding the use of all spirituous and fermented liquors at bazars, and also forbidding the holding of bazars on the Sabbath.

Victims of a Fire.

COLUMBUS, May 19.—Harry Evans and Beckey Knox have died from injuries at the fire in the opera house at Westerville Monday night. Willie Frazier, Vernie Boardman, Harry Haynes and Ada Markley will probably not recover.

LABOR TROUBLES.

A Judge's Charge to a Jury.

MILWAUKEE, May 19.—The charge given by Judge Mallory to-day to the grand jury drawn to consider cases against alleged instigators or participants in recent labor riots in this city, while commended by the public in general, is the occasion of considerable comment among the legal fraternity. After charging the jury to conduct its work in a spirit of strict impartiality the judge continues: No person should be indicted for the commission of any offense unless such person was in some way by word or act connected with its commission. It is not necessary that a person should have actually participated in the commission of an unlawful or criminal act to make him responsible, but every person who counsels, lires, procures or incites others to the commission of any unlawful or criminal act is equally guilty with those who actually perpetrate the act, though such person may not have been present at the time of commission of the offense, or, an agreement between two or more persons wrongfully to injure or prejudice a third person or any body of men. If therefore two or more persons conspire together for the purpose of boycotting a man with the intent to injure or destroy his business they may be indicted for conspiracy. If a member resort to violence or other unlawful means for the purpose of accomplishing objects sought to be obtained by any organization whose officers or members are bound is an unlawful organization and liable to indictment. Conspiracy to prevent by means of threats or unlawful means an operative from obtaining employment in his business is indictable. It is also indictable to conspire to molest and obstruct workmen with a view to induce them to leave their employment, and any labor organization having for its object the accomplishment of such purposes by such means is unlawful.

Anarchism in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, May 19.—Discussion of anarchism in St. Louis and the most effective means of preventing its spread occupied the attention of the police yesterday at their regular meeting. It is stated by a member of the board that the members had never attempted to disperse meetings of anarchists, though they knew their incendiary speeches at such times were violations of the law; that the district attorney had refused to bring the matter before the grand jury; that justices had refused to issue warrants for their arrest. In view of these facts the board adopted a resolution instructing the chief of police to disperse all unlawful assemblages of anarchists at which resistance of law is advocated, and arrest any and all violators of the law by uttering incendiary speeches or inciting to riot.

Deputy Sheriffs Discharged.

ST. LOUIS, May 19. The grand jury at Belleville, Ill., to-day returned their report to the circuit court after having refused to find true bills against deputy sheriffs who fired upon the mob in East St. Louis during the recent railroad strike and killed six of their number. An order was made for their release and they departed for their homes.

A Lockout Ended.

NEWARK, N. J., May 19. Twenty-one firms, comprising the Newark Fur Hat Manufacturers' association, who locked out their men on the 1st, decided to end the lockout to-day and notified the men to return to work.

Compelled to Reduce.

LONDON, May 19. Ward & Payne of Sheffield, one of the largest firms of edge tool makers in England, recently announced that they were compelled to make a reduction in the wages of their employes in order to compete successfully with German manufacturers. The workmen refused to submit to a reduction to their pay, and the firm now threatens to employ German workmen in their stead. The employes are greatly excited over the proposed action of the firm.

Advancement Offered.

BOSTON, May 19.—The Statement is published here that Thomas J. Potter, the general manager of the C., B. & Q., has been offered the presidency of the Bee Line, and is now in Boston conferring with officials of his road in regard to the matter.

Home Rule Agitation.

LONDON, May 19.—Salisbury was accorded a perfect ovation when he appeared upon the stage of Her Majesty's theater this afternoon to address a conservative meeting assembled there under the auspices of the Primrose league. All his auditors wore Beaconsfield's favorite flower. In his address Salisbury declared that toryism was growing rapidly among all classes in the empire. He said he felt it to be his duty in the critical times to urge all loyal men to combine for the support of religion and the empire. He denied that he had recommended as the best means of governing the Irish people the adoption of the twenty years coercion policy. He had only advised the maintenance of law and order in Ireland. He reiterated his advice to the Irish to emigrate from Ireland. They could not prosper and be contented under British rule. He urged conservatives to support the liberal unionist's candidate in the coming election where the conservatives have no candidate.

The conservatives have arranged to hold a monster loyalist demonstration against the home rule bill in the city of Gainsborough, Lincolnshire, to-night. Parnell has organized a counter-demonstration in the same place and has sent Healy thither to take charge of it and make the principal speech.

Brooks' Trial.

ST. LOUIS, May 19.—Brooks alias Maxwell, on trial for the murder of Preller, was taken into the criminal court this morning. He maintains quiet and professes great relief at having been allowed by his attorneys to make a true statement of the manner in which Preller came to his death, and feels confident that public opinion has already acquitted him of the crime. All of the witnesses for the state were present in a body and are kept in strict surveillance by the sheriff.

Hunt, clerk of the Southern hotel, was the first witness in the morning, and his examination and cross examination consumed the greater part of the morning. He testified that he was cashier of the hotel at the time of the murder. He identified the prisoner as a man who in April, 1885, registered as W. H. Lennox Maxwell, M. D. He identified a photograph as that of Preller, who arrived at the house April 3d. His testimony was a repetition of the facts known of the intimacy of the Englishmen, Maxwell's apparent lack of money, the disappearance of Preller, the departure of Brooks for San Francisco and the discovery of the body in a trunk. During the cross-examination witness admitted that he had no means of knowing that the man who registered as C. Arthur Preller did not register that name as an alias. He had gone to the morgue after Preller's body had been placed there, but could not identify, could not even state positively that the remains were those of a human being.

William Lyon and John Nayon, porters, identified the remains of Preller. They testified that Maxwell evinced a great desire to be closely intimate with Preller.

A witness named Warren met Maxwell and Preller on the steamer Cephalonia and witnessed their introduction to each other. Maxwell cultivated Preller assiduously.

After recess Renck Brown, who had charge of the billiard room at the Southern hotel at the time of the murder, testified that Preller and Maxwell played pool together almost every afternoon. Preller, being inexperienced, paid for most of the games and drinks and in doing so exhibited money in large amounts. Whenever Maxwell paid for anything it was generally with small change.

Maddie Cuddihe, chambermaid, recognized the prisoner as the occupant of room 144 during part of the month of April, 1885. The prisoner was a late riser and it was 11 o'clock before she could ever get into his room to perform her duties, but on the Monday morning after the death of Preller the prisoner had arisen early; saw him in one of the corridors. He appeared nervous and excited.

Katie Clark, chambermaid in the Southern hotel, positively identified the body found in Maxwell's trunk as that of Preller. She saw Preller last on Saturday morning. She made his bed on Sunday. It appeared to have been occupied. Witness was shown part of her testimony given before the coroner, and she denied that she had stated that she had seen Preller on Monday and reiterated that she particularly noticed what kind of a mat Preller was.

Henry Arlington, head waiter in the Southern hotel, testified to having seen the prisoner and dead man at various times and to having talked with them. Maxwell said he had been house surgeon at a hospital at Manchester, England. Witness recognized Preller's photograph. He saw Preller on Easter Sunday morning, seated at a piano, Maxwell sitting near him. Did not see Preller again but saw Maxwell about 10.15 that night. He came into the ordinary and called for a wine card and ordered a small bottle of champagne. He was a little drunk. The wine was brought but he only sipped a little of it and told me to give the remainder to the boys. He then pulled out a roll of bank bills and laying it on a table said: "Suppose a man was to murder a man in this country and he had five or six hundred dollars, could he get off?" "Good God," I said, "you are in a civilized country now, young man." From that he wandered off to his experience in the Turkish army; said the sultan had made a pasha of him for service in the field. He talked at random and foolishly. Finally he walked out, but stopped at the door, and pulling out a large pistol, said: "Isn't that a daisy?" and added that he had knocked several Russians on the head with it. I asked him where he and his friend were going. He said his friend was away in the country, but he was going to the Cape; said he would change his clothes for a western outfit, and I advised him to retain the suit he had on. Then he asked me to go out and have a good time with him. He said he did not give a damn for spending fifty or sixty dollars, but I told him I was on watch and could not get away, and he left.—Next time I saw Maxwell was on Monday evening following. He was in the ordinary, drinking coffee. I asked him if he was going out to have a good time and looking up quickly he said no, that he was called back to Turkey and would have to leave.

A Shooting Affair.

SALT LAKE, Utah, May 19. Last night John A. Glowers shot his wife in the side, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Decker, in the abdomen, and in a scuffle to shoot Lester Decker, his wife's brother, shot himself in the head, dying instantly. Mrs. Decker died to-day. Mrs. Glowers is fatally hurt and is not expected to live until to-morrow. Glowers and his wife had separated. He visited her last night at her mother's and on her refusing to go home with him the shooting began.

An Incendiary Taken In.

CHICAGO, May 19. John A. Henry, who is employed on a morning paper as a compositor, and whose incendiary utterances since the arrest of Spies and other anarchists have given him an unenviable reputation, was arrested to-day while engaged in the distribution of a call for a demonstration which it was intended should take place on the lake front on Sunday afternoon next.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—The Chronicle's Tombstone special says: Captain Kuys and Lieutenant Ward have been arrested by General Miles for dilatoriness in proceeding to the assistance of Captain Lebo during the latter's recent engagement with the hostiles at Calabasas. They have been taken to Fort Grant and their command turned over to Captain Lebo.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 19. Two sons of Captain Andrade, while on the way to Aqua Zarca ranch, their home, from here, were murdered yesterday by Indians seven miles south of here. Three horses bearing bloody saddles ran into Plancho De Plata this morning. The same horses had passed an hour before bearing two men named Sullivan and Moore and a courier, riding towards Nogales, trying to overtake them. All are believed to have been killed by the Apaches. Oscar Darwin and partner, mining here, are also reported murdered. Capt. Lawton is in close pursuit. Indians have a number of wounded in the Huscomia mountains, and Lawton, it is expected, will overhaul them there.

A Street Assassination.

DENVER, May 19. James Whitney, a street-car driver, while turning his car at the end of the Broadway line at 10:30 to-night, was shot through the heart and instantly killed by an unknown person. The car was empty and the assassin was evidently standing by its side when he fired the fatal shot, as the drivers' clothes were afire. Robbery is supposed to be the cause, but several parties heard the shot, rushed to the car and the murderer escaped without securing the box. Deceased had been married only a year. His wife is soon to become a mother, and it is feared the shock will prove fatal to her.

Cyclone in Idaho.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 19. A Tribune special from Blackfoot, Idaho, says: A cyclone struck this place at 2:15 p. m. to-day, entirely demolishing the Union Pacific round house. About thirty men were inside at the time, who fled to pits, barely escaping with their lives. The following were injured: S. J. Paxton, head and face cut; Thomas Marquett, John McMillan, leg broken. D. A. Taylor's new brick building was unroofed.

An Engineer's Accident.

DENVER, May 19. William Howard, engineer on the Colorado Central, while working with the hose of the air brake on his freight train at Golden this afternoon, was caught between two freight cars and seriously injured in the groin. Recovery is doubtful.

Military Posts for Denver.

WASHINGTON, May 19. Teller to-day introduced in the senate a bill to appropriate $20,000 for the establishment and erection of military posts near Denver.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, May 19. Governments dull and steady. Stocks opened heavy, a majority of the active list showing declines of ⅛ to ¼ per cent. There was some heaviness apparent in early tradings and declines of small fractions were made before 11 a. m., the lowest prices of the day being made generally in the first hour. The market then continued dull and featureless, although a firm tone prevailed until near the close. Prices fell off a fraction in the last hour and closed rather heavy close to last night's last final prices.

Items from Paris.

PARIS, May 19. The government has decided to introduce in the chamber of deputies a bill to dispose finally of the pretensions of the Orleans princes.

Baron De Courcel, French ambassador at Berlin, has arrived here to confer with the government concerning the relations between France and Germany. It is reported these relations are at present strained.

M. Rousseau, delegate appointed by the government to inspect the work on the Panama canal, has presented a report in which he denies the correctness of the canal company's statement respecting its facilities for construction, the time when the canal will be completed and the amount still required to, accomplish the work. M. Baihaut, minister of public works, will inform M. DeLesseps and his fellow directors that they must reply to M. Rousseau's report as the government cannot authorize the proposed issue of lottery bonds until the position of the company is made clear.

There will be a liquor issue in Pennsylvania this fall. The prohibitionists are well organized and present a ticket worthy of support.

We trust our readers will read carefully the sprinkling ordinance published this morning. It will be enforced May 27th, but the council will amend it, if it is shown that it can be made more efficient

New York is said to be divided between President Cleveland and Governor Hill. This is so much the worse for New York. The republicans could not put up a candidate weak enough to be beaten by Hill

The opponents of Gladstone seem to be hopeful of beating him. They may prevent the second reading, but the triumph will be short lived. Gladstone has justice on his side and the people will follow him

The mayor of one of our cities has announced by proclamation that workingmen can return to their work without molestation. It is a peculiar state of affairs when a proclamation is required to enable a man to earn his living

The Washington Hatchet has the following regarding the relations between the president and his party that shows the democrats are gaining in intelligence

"It is rather early to discuss the president's "chance for a re-nomination in 1888, but he "and his party seem rather nearer together "than they were at the beginning of the session. At that time there was grave and "frank opposition to the administration policy in both houses and prominent democrats "went upon record as differing radically from the White house views "of what was necessary for party "success. Since then much of the open talk "has died away, however, and what dissatisfaction there is left seems to be confined to "disappointed applicants for office and to "Tammany. How much the fight on the "Edmunds resolution has had to do with this "change it is difficult to say, but it was probably a factor. Immediate official contact with "the president has doubtless, also had its "influence upon democratic congressmen. "Before the late Vice-President Hendricks "died it was his constant advice to avoid any "open rupture. He was opposed to the civil "service idea but he held it at the antagonism "while firm, should be respectful, and that "it would be bad policy to attack the president personally inasmuch as it would create "two factions in the party and injure its prospects in 1888. This advice seems to have "been finally taken and none of the democratic leaders have actually broken with "the president, or made it impossible for them "to visit the White House because of unusually bitter and adverse criticism."

General Sherman's middle name "Tecumseh" he owes to his father who had removed to Ohio just before the war of 1812 with the British and Indians, and, in spite of the Indian depredations, seems to have caught a fancy for the great chief of the Shawnees. In the concluding portion of his life General Sherman says that his father had tried for years to get one of his sons named "Tecumseh" but that he did not succeed until his mother had named a son for each of her brothers. Then she ran out of names and Judge Sherman had his way

An Irish Brigade Story

A correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean relates this story of the Irish brigade: At the close of the seven days' retreat occurred a little incident which fastened the brigade to General Sumner's heart with hooks of steel. Some muskets were of course lost and thrown away on that prolonged retreat, but astonishingly few, all things considered. Every case that came to [illegible] [illegible] them beyond bounds. When [illegible] officer of the Eighty eighth came to him with a requisition for quite a number of muskets Sumner broke out violently, denounced bitterly men who would [illegible] or abandon their arms and ended by saying: "You shall not have those muskets. I'll take the men all away from you and make your men dig trenches. Such men are [illegible]."

The officer listened calmly to this tirade and then said: "No, you must not, General. We've not lost them or thrown them away."

"Where are they, then?" said Sumner

"Outside, sir. I thought maybe you'd be wanting to see them."

The general went out and found a pile of muskets with cracked and splintered stocks, bent barrels and twisted bayonets

"How is this?" said he

"It's the Eighty eighth, sir," said the officer. "The boys got in a scrimmage with the Louisiana Tigers and when the bloody villains took to their knives the boys mostly forgot their bayonets."

As Sumner gazed on these speaking witnesses of desperate pluck his rugged face softened, and, generous as he was hasty, he said a few words which warmed the heart of every Irishman in the army that heard them. From that time we used to say that the general thought he could whip Lee's army with the Irish brigade and Pettit's battery

Lord Macaulay's Emphatic Thinking

From the Critic

When I was in London, in the fifties I used to have a great fancy for running around the by-lanes and corners, and of hunting up places of historical or literary interest that the guide books barely mention and that few travelers go to see. Among my haunts was an old low-ceiled tavern, with a sanded floor two feet below the level of the sidewalk. I used to go there and drink half and half and try to bring up images of the wits of the last century, who used to sit in that same room and drink half and half too. One day an image materialized, for while I was sitting beside a table, with my pewter pot half emptied I observed that a large man in a cloak had entered. His face was round pale and heavy, but the eyes were bright and his bushy eyebrows slid up and down with quick changes of expression. He sat down at the table next to mine and directly a waiter came in with a big plate of bread and cheese and a glass of ale and set it before him. He ate and drank heartily, and after finishing his lunch sat upright and rested his hands on a heavy cane. I could see only his back, but from occasional movements of his head such as a man makes when he is arguing in earnest I surmised that he was doing some pretty hard thinking. Sudden he reached for his empty glass and hurled it on the floor with all his strength, smashing it into shivers. He sat for a minute longer, then got up slowly, "tipped" the waiter, paid his reckoning at the bar, and passed out. He had not uttered a word. The waiter got a broom swept up the pieces of glass and cleared the table. I asked him if the gentleman's intellect was a little in need of repair. "Oh, no sir," said he. "That's nothink unusual with 'im, sir. Why he's broke mabybe a 'undred glasses since he's been a comin' to this 'ouse. 'E don't know it when 'e does it. 'E's a thinkin', and it seems like as 'e got mad at what 'e was thinkin' about." "Who is he?" "Lord Macaulay, sir."

Her Frankness Saved Her

Some years ago it is related a young pianist was about to give a concert in one of the European capitals. Although she had never seen the great Hungarian composer, she was tempted to insert in the programs she sent out the alluring notice, "pupil of Liszt," deeming herself perfectly safe from detection, as the musician was far away. Just before the day of the concert she took up a newspaper, and to her horror among the names of the arrivals at a certain hotel in the city, she read that of "the Abbe Liszt." What was she to do? To confess her fraud openly at the outset of her musical career would be to crush it at once. A straightforward plan suggested itself. Acting upon it she went to the hotel, asked to see the abbe, and threw herself on his mercy. Liszt asked her a few questions, and then requested her to play one of the pieces she intended to perform at the concert. While she did so he stood over her, suggesting a pause here or correcting a forte there. At the conclusion of the piece Liszt said "Now Mademoiselle you can truthfully say you are a pupil of Liszt, for you have had your first lesson. You may also put on your programmes that you will be assisted by your master, who will play two pieces at your concert." Liszt kept his promise, and by his disinterested kindness saved the girl's reputation.

Four Children Burned

AKRON, Ohio, May 19. The house of Mrs Mary Mooney, widow, situated three miles north of Akron burned to the ground shortly before midnight and four children, the oldest 12 and the youngest 4 perished in the flames. Mrs Mooney awoke in the night to find herself choking with smoke and snatching up her baby told the other little ones who were almost stifled, to follow her. Mrs Mooney sprang out of the window with the babe in her arms and landed almost unhurt, the baby also receiving but slight injuries. Lawrence Mooney, aged 60 brother in law of Mrs Mooney, was awakened by the children's outcry and rushed out of the house only to be told by the frantic mother that her four little ones were still in the burning building. Both the mother and uncle rushed into the flames time after time, but were beaten back. His injuries may prove fatal

Benton's Hair Grower

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp should use Benton's Hair Grower. Eighty Per Cent of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls out in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years. We have fully substantiated the following facts

We grow Hair in 80 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff and itching of the scalp.

The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

—DOUBLE AND TRIPLE STRENGTH—

A VISIT TO PARIS.

A Large Audience Delighted by Mr. Ragan's Lecture.

The seating capacity of the opera house was pretty well taxed last night by those who were present at the first of the series of lectures given by Mr. Henry H. Ragan.

His subject last night was "Paris, the Magnificent," and to those who have visited the gay capital, its beauties were most vividly recalled; and those who have never had that pleasure, were able to form a more striking and satisfactory impression of the great city than they have ever received from books or other guides. This is Mr. Ragan's first visit to this city, and although he has been preceded by others who have given similar lectures, it is not too much to say that in the beauty and finish and completeness of his entertainments, he surpasses them all. His lectures alone, marked as they are by pure diction, graphic descriptions and racy coloring, would be greatly enjoyed without the additional attraction of his lime-light pictures. But the views he presents, about eighty during an evening, are so interesting and enjoyable that one hardly knows which to admire the more, the admirable lecture or its beautiful representation on the canvas.

Mr. Ragan, in opening his lecture last night, explained in a few words the marked changes the traveler would see in going from London to Paris, and then with some pleasant allusions to the characteristics of the Parisians and their American visitors, began his tour at the Place de la Concorde. In a few graphic words he sketched some of the famous scenes that have been enacted around that historic spot and then took the audience to the Corps Legislatif, the church of the Madeleine, the new opera house that cost ten millions of dollars, and there he lingered long enough to show some of the magnificence and splendor that have made it the finest temple of amusement in the world. Passing thence through some famous boulevards, parks and palaces, the travelers visited the leading objects of interest in this most interesting of cities, stopping a moment to look at the Arch of Triumph and the great Napoleon in the meridian of his glory, then glancing at his tomb under the dome of the soldiers' home he founded, and thus inspecting with wondering admiration some of the marvelous creations of his genius and power. The Louvre, the Tuileries and the glories they contain were objects of special attention, and before the audience hardly realized that their trip had begun, one hour and a half of most delightful scenes had been passed in "Paris the Magnificent."

Mr. Ragan thoroughly demonstrated to his audience that he had traveled largely and was an accomplished and cultivated speaker. He delighted his audience from the very start with his descriptions while the eighty or more vivid illustrations choicely colored gave all present a good conception of the many points of interest in this magnificent city. "Oh, isn't that grand!" was heard from all sides of the house as the pictures in turn passed over the canvas. Just after the intermission Mr. Ragan in order to show that the pictures of our Colorado scenery could be produced as perfectly as those of Paris, London, Rome or any other foreign scenery, exhibited views of the Tabor opera house at Denver, The Antlers, Garden of the Gods, Pike's Peak and the Grand Cañon of the Arkansas.

Next Saturday night Mr. Ragan will give at the opera house his lecture on "The Rhine and Switzerland," which is equally as good as that given last night. Season tickets entitling holders to the next three lectures are now on sale.

"Over the Garden Wall."

The new play, says the Tribune-Republican, which the Knights presented at the Tabor last night is by far the best of all the skits, for two reasons: first, because there is more of legitimate comedy in it than in any of the others, and second, because it is not constructed with the sole view of giving one person prominence in every scene in the play. With so good a farce it is not remarkable that the Knights scored a complete success last night. Mr. Knight's work is not only funny; it is artistic. His German dialect is better than that of any other character actor on the stage. There is nothing of the variety stage Dutchman about his "Soltz." It is a clever bit of comedy acting, full of fine points and with many delicate touches. Mrs. Knight is as jolly as ever, and in excellent voice. Her dresses are marvellous things in their way, and the number which she wears during the evening is quite beyond the reckoning of any one but a mathematician. The support is exceptionally good. Mr. George Monroe's "Bridget" is a prize in the lottery of comic characters, and Mr. John Rice very cleverly plays the part of "Soltz, Jr."

The Tabor was crowded and the large audience was in a roar from the beginning of the play to the end. Public taste is "one of those things which no fellow can find out" except by accident. Mr. Knight has at last found the play that draws. Theatre goers seem to prefer fun to sentiment. His Baron Rudolph, which is a gem as brilliant as Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle, is thrown aside for his Soltz in "Over the Garden Wall." We will not find fault with him for giving up Rudy. Even an actor must eat and have a place to sleep. His art is not all sufficient. Mr. Knight and his wife are making money in "Over the Garden Wall," and we are glad of it. Some day when they are rich George may, just for amusement, play for the sake of art.

Glen Park!

The project to establish a summer resort after the order of Ocean Grove, Martha's Vineyard and Chautauqua, within a mile south of Palmer Lake, is an assured success. Those should subscribe who want to see it made a success, because of the opportunity it will offer for the holding all kinds of religious assemblies at a most charming place, free from the adverse influences which obtain at most established towns. Those should subscribe who want to take advantage of the low rates at which the lots are now held. Those subscribing $100 will constitute the first class, and be entitled to five first-class lots in a group. Others will be entitled to one first-class lot for each $100 subscribed, while those subscribing $75 and $50 each will be entitled, respectively to a second or third-class lot. The money so put down will be conscientiously used in laying out streets, erecting the auditorium, hotel, rustic summer houses, and fountains, and in arranging walks, drives, water service, drainage, etc. The Supervisory Board consists of Dean Hart (Episcopal), Dr. De La Matyr (Methodist Episcopal), Dr. Cameron (Baptist), Dr. Reed (Congregationalist), Rev. R. P. Wools (Presbyterian), Rev. W. Bayard Craig (Christian), and Rev. G. W. Ross (United Brethren). The Executive Committee consists of: R. H. Gilmore, President; F. A. Williams, Vice President; H. B. Chamberlin, Secretary; Granville Malcolm, Treasurer; W. Finley Thompson, Sanitary and Park Commissioner. Subscriptions are payable, 50 per cent cash, 50 per cent monthly. Coates Bros of Philadelphia in their circular of May 15th state that all markets are very quiet. Prices of some grades are again lower, while for other kinds there has been hardly enough demand to establish quotations. Those who have held to this time are not disposed to part with their stock at less than market prices. But little new wool has arrived Some very early Virginia unwashed and Southern Ohio fat sheep wools have been received, but it will be more than a month yet before any fair supply can come to market. Texas has finished shearing and considerable wool has accumulated at the railroad centres, the views of sellers and buyers being too far apart to permit it to come forward In the nearer unwashed sections wool cannot be moved at less than two to three cents more than last year's prices It is now evident that growers in the washed sections and in the important western states and territories, will also expect higher prices than last year, and it seems therefore probable that the clip of the country will come to market slowly, so that, should there be no drawbacks to manufacturing industries, it will meet with a steady demand throughout the season. Manufacturers have been holding off for so long that they can now have but little stock and must buy as they need supplies

AN ORDINANCE

An Ordinance concerning the use of water from hydrants for purposes of sprinkling lawns and gardens

Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Colorado Springs

SECTION 1 For the use of water from the hydrants, water mains and pipes for purposes of sprinkling lawns and gardens the city is hereby divided into two districts so that all north of Pike's Peak avenue shall constitute District No 1 and all south of that avenue shall constitute District No 2 For such purposes said water shall be used only between the hours of five o clock in the forenoon and seven o clock in the afternoon and in said districts only upon the days following In said district No 1 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and in said district No 2 on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays Provided that in any part of the city said water may be so used on Sundays between the hours of five and nine o clock in the forenoon and four and eight o clock in the afternoon

SEC 2 No water shall be so used except through a nozzle of not more than one quarter of an inch orifice, nor shall more than one such nozzle for each lawn or inclosure be in use at the same time,

SEC 3 No stationary fountain shall be permitted to run with an orifice of more than one eighth of an inch, and only between the hours of ten o clock in the forenoon and seven o clock in the afternoon, and may be so used upon any day

SEC 4 The mayor shall in time of scarcity of water, and whenever he shall deem it necessary, by proclamation forbid the use of water for any of the purposes above mentioned and all use of water thereafter, while such proclamation shall remain in force is forbidden

SEC 5 It shall be the duty of the superintendent of water works to shut off the water from any person through whose hydrant or pipes any of the provisions of this ordinance may be violated and the water shall only be turned on again by payment by the person guilty of such violation the city clerk a fee of five dollars for turning on the water in such cases

SEC 6 All use of water for any of the purposes above mentioned shall be immediately stopped at the alarm of fire and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty five nor more than fifty dollars

SEC 7 Chapter eighteen (XVIII) of the Revised Ordinances passed and approved April 7th 1884 is hereby repealed

Passed and approved May 17th, 1886

We are now ready for business We are not the oldest, but the youngest house in town therefore our goods are the newest and freshest. We have the largest and most complete stock ever brought to this city Our fancy goods are equal in quality and quantity to any house in the state They consist of all the fine domestic and imported goods put up for the trade. We have come here to stay and for the purpose of building up a large wholesale and retail trade. Our former reputation in this city for selling goods cheap and on closer margins than anybody is we think all that it is necessary for us to say on that point. At least those who will call and examine our stock and get our prices will be convinced of the truth of what we say Our clerks will be courteous and attentive and glad to show you through our stock whether you buy or not. We will guarantee prices both wholesale and retail, equal to any given you by Denver houses We are sole agents for the celebrated Pine Apple Brand of hams and breakfast bacon, the choicest put up in America

COME! COME!

An Immense stock of furniture now arriving at the Carpenter block These goods were bought for cash before the advance of May 1st from the largest and best manufacturers in the United States and shipped by the car load at the lowest possible freight rate I am handling exclusively new furniture and therefore am able to offer a larger and better variety than houses handling several lines of goods

In connection will be found a repair shop in charge of Mr The[illegible] who thoroughly understands his business and customers can depend upon honest and first-class work

I want the people of our city and county to come and inspect this new stock and get prices before purchasing elsewhere I propose to handle good goods, meet all fair competition and do business honestly and hope to merit a fair share of your patronage Respectfully

JOHN LENNOX.
